1/ FY 1985 and FY 1986 costs are based on preliminary estimates of staffing levels for individual offices and bureaus. Increases from FY 1984 are generally the result of increased costs of salaries resulting from the January 1985 pay raise and annualizing the cost of the January 1984 pay raise.

2/ FY 1986 reduction reflects transfer of personnel from IG/LAC in AID/W to Honduras.

3/ Increase in FY 1985 is due to the purchase of a new mainframe computer.

a Contributions pledged in currencies other than U.S. dollars and not yet paid are recorded at the UN rate of exchange prevailing at the time pledged. Those paid are valued at the rate prevailing at the time of payment.

b. The figures in this column represent government pledges to UNICEF general resources at the pledging conference which took place on November 14-15, 1985, as updated on February 11, 1986. Many countries make pledges and payments later on in the year.

c. Decreases are shown in parentheses. In some cases they are due to the fact that a government has not yet made a pledge or has made only a partial pledge. In other cases the decreases are due to the fact that the pledges remain constant in the foreign currency contributed but appear smaller after conversion into U.S. dollars at the prevailing exchange rate.

d. U.S. pledge, adjusted for the G-R-H legislation, made on May 6, 1986

e. Not available. Starting in 1984, UNICEF began accounting AGFUND contributions on the basis of program allocations rather than overall pledges.

f. Totals may not agree due to rounding.

EARMARKED CONTRIBUTIONS TO UNEP

According to Rule 203.2 of UNEP's Financial Rules, "Voluntary Contributions shall be accepted without limitations as to use for a specific project or purpose." This effectively precludes the earmarking of contributions. In some of UNEP's regional environmental programs, however, trust funds have been set up to finance activities of regional importance. These trust funds are managed under UNEP auspices until the regional organizations they serve become suficiently advanced to be able to manage the funds themselves.

The U.S. is particularly interested in trust funds established for Regional Seas Program Plans of Action in the Caribbean and South Pacific. The U.S. has provided $600,000 in in-kind support for Caribbean Program projects.

Footnotes:

1/ Figures for First Replenishment Category I contributions are calculated using exchange rates in effect on December 8, 1980. Figures for Second Replenishment Category I contributions are calculated using the monthly average exchange rate of the International Monetary Fund over the period July 1, 1985 - December 31, 1985.

2/ The First Replenishment pledge of Iran is shown as paid in full because this country has deposited an instrument of contribution for its IFAD I pledge. However, funds have yet to be provided against this country's instrument.

3/ Payments to the Second Replenishment include advance contributions made before the conclusion of the IFAD II agreement and subsequent payments received as of May 16, 1986. Spain's payment exceeds its pledge because an advance contribution was made before its pledge level was determined during the final replenishment agreement.

STATION ALLOWANCE

Overseas Housing Allowances (OHA), and Cost-of-Living Allowances (COLA) are authorized in overseas areas for uniformed personnel. OHA includes three components: a maximum rental allowance, which is based on the 80th percentile of rental costs at the duty location; a utility allowance, which is based on average utility costs; and an initial/terminal occupancy (I/O) allowance, which is normally a minor allowance reflecting average moving in/out costs associated with occupying an overseas dwelling. While OHA defrays a significant amount of housing costs, COLA defrays the average excess costs experienced by members assigned overseas. These excess costs are derived by comparing the average costs of a market basket of goods and services in the overseas area to the same market basket in the United States.

Depending upon the specific overseas location, a member may receive either an OHA or COLA or both. In some locations where housing and other living costs are negligible, neither OHA nor COLA are authorized.

Overseas Housing Allowances and Cost-of-Living Allowances for military personnel are authorized by Vol. 1 of the Joint Travel Regulations (JTR). Rates prescribed therein are not special allowances applicable to military personnel on MAAG assignment outside the United States.

The following are examples of allowances authorized at specific locations selected from Appendices A, B, and C of the JTR, Vol. 1:

	MONTHLY
LOCALITY	COLA	OHA
Denmark, Copenhagen	$319.00	$ 577.60
Germany, Heidelberg	None	$ 401.60
Spain, Madrid	$ 29.00	$ 650.60
Morocco, Rabat	None	None
Mexico, Mexico City	None	$1090.60
Thailand, Bangkok	$ 29.00	$ 573.60
Greece, Athens	None	None
Korea, Seoul	None	$ 217.60
Pakistan, Karachi	$145.00	None
Peru, Lima	None	$ 921.60
Austria, Vienna	$551.00	$1326.60

NOTE: COLA and OHA are monthly for an O-6 with 27 years of service and 2 dependents. OHA reflects rent (these examples reflect maximum allowance) plus utility and I/O allowances minus BAQ.

THE WORLD BANK/INTERNATIONAL FINANCE CORPORATION

OFFICE MEMORANDUM

DATE: July 10, 1986

TO: Mr. Brian G. Crowe, Assistant to the U.S. Executive Director

FROM: Richard B. Lynn, Director, GSD

EXTENSION: 32000

SUBJECT: Information on SST Concorde Flights

1. As the Travel & Shipping Division, which maintains the majority of the data you requested, is now part of the General Services Department, your memorandum of June 25, 1986, to Mr. Harinder Kohli regarding information on the above subject has been forwarded to me for response.

2. The following are the figures you requested for FY86:

- Total number of operational one-way transatlantic SST Concorde Flights ----- 22 1/
- Total incremental cost of taking the SST Concorde ---------------------- $11,654 2/

3. The total cost of transatlantic one-way flights cannot be broken out separately as it does not represent actual fares charged unless the traveler terminates in either London or Paris.

4. Also attached is a list by country indicating the ultimate destination when SST Concorde was used over the Atlantic (Attachment #1), as well as an evolution of total travel costs for the last three years (Attachment #2).

1/ This reflects total FY86 SST Concorde travel by Bank/IFC staff ticketed from Headquarters.

2/ Based on surcharge levels of $592 for New York/London trips, $587 for Washington/London trips, and $367 for New York/Paris trips. Actual cost is somewhat less because of the effects of one-way ticketing and the existence of special published Concorde fares when travel does not continue beyond the U.K.

Attachment.

Policies on Loans to Employees

Installation Advance:

Regular employees and full-time temporary employees with contracts of one year or more duration, are eligible for a salary advance for installation purposes at the new post of duty when they are contracted in a place different from their assigned post of duty or relocated to a new post of duty. Such employees may request an advance of up to one month's salary within a period of one year from the date of appointment or relocation. The advance must be repaid within a meximum period of 18 months, or by the end of the employee's contract, if it is less. As of June 30, 1986, there were 17 installation loans outstanding totaling $43,937. Before November 14, 1983, the interest rate was 4 percent. Since November 14, the interest rate is equal to the 90 day U.S. Treasury Bill rate in effect on the first day of the month of the loan's issue.

Emergency Advance:

Emergency advances are only granted in case of death in the family, grave illness, loss of property, etc. The requestor has to have exhausted other means of procuring the funds. The terms are determined by the gravity of the case. The interest is between 0 to 14.33% with maturities up to 3 years.

There are currently 5 emergency loans for a total amount of $6,817 outstanding.

Policies on Loans to Employees

Asian Development Bank

The Asian Development Bank (ADB) does not have loan programs for housing, furniture, and education comparable to those of the World Bank. The ADB does make the following loans available to its employees:

> Settling-in Loans -- New employees are eligible for a salary advance equivalent to three months' salary which is repayable over 18 months at five percent interest. An additional advance equal to $2,000, repayable in 12 months with interest at six percent per annum can be secured, as can a subsequent advance of up to $2,000 which is repayable over 36 months at 9.65 percent interest. In 1985, 107 settling-in loans for 684,274 were made.
>
> Other Advances -- The ADB will also make salary advances of up to four months' salary for advance rental payments, repayable over a period equal to the number of months of advance rental, with interest at 9.65 percent. In 1985, the ADB made 382 such loans for a total of $3,741,989.
> Finally, the ADB will make special loans on compassionate grounds under the following terms: (1) advance up to two months' salary repayable in 12 months at 5 percent interest; (2) an additional advance of up to four months' salary, repayable in 30 months with interest at 9.65 percent. In 1985, the ADB made 321 loans on these grounds for a total of $361,516.

In 1985, the ADB made a grand total of 810 loans and advances in the amount of $4,787,780.

THE WORLD BANK ATLAS 1985

INTRODUCTION

This eighteenth edition of The World Bank Atlas, in keeping with the previous editions, presents data on population, gross national product (gnp), and gnp per capita for 1982 in current U.S. dollars. This Atlas also presents preliminary estimates for each of these indicators for 1983 and average annual growth rates for 1973–82. New in this edition are data on life expectancy, infant mortality, and primary school enrollment. The data on gnp per capita remain the focal point of the Atlas, but the addition of some selected social measures broadens the picture of living conditions throughout the world. Also new is the greater use of text and charts to highlight some of the more instructive aspects of the data.

As a result of the Bank's continuing efforts to improve the coverage and comparability of its gnp data, the procedures for estimating gnp in U.S. dollars differ from those used in previous years. The principle of using average prices and exchange rates for a three-year base period to smooth the effects of fluctuating exchange rates remains unchanged. But the conversion factor for translating gnp in national currencies to gnp in U.S. dollars is now the simple average of the exchange rates for the current year and for the two preceding years; the latter two exchange rates are adjusted for differences between domestic inflation and U.S. inflation. In addition, the three-year base period for gnp conversion in the Atlas consists, in every instance, of the reporting year and the two preceding years. In the past the three-year base period used to calculate final figures in one Atlas was advanced a year from that used to calculate preliminary figures for the same year in the preceding Atlas. Now, the base period for all 1982 data is 1980–81–82, and that for all 1983 data is 1981–82–83. This change from previous practice ensures that the base period for preliminary 1983 data presented this year will be the same for that of the final 1983 data presented next year. Any changes between the preliminary and the final gnp per capita data will thus be due to revisions of the underlying national accounts and population, not to a change in the base period. Moreover, the assessments of national accounting systems, of the quality of national accounts data, and of the appropriateness of using the official exchange rate as the conversion factor have now been systematized. See the Technical Notes on page 28.

Despite these changes, it must be kept in mind that the statistical systems in many developing economies are still weak, and this affects the availability and reliability of data. Much effort has gone into standardizing the data—their definitions, coverage, timing, valuation, and other characteristics. But this standardization has not been possible for all countries. Readers should take these limitations into account in interpreting the data, particularly when comparing countries and country groups. Further, the gnp data shown in the Atlas provide only an approximate measure of economic conditions and trends in the countries of the world and reveal nothing about the distribution of income within countries.

TECHNICAL NOTES

The World Bank recognizes that perfect cross-country comparability of gnp per capita estimates cannot be achieved. Beyond the classic, strictly intractable "index number problem," two obstacles stand in the way of adequate comparability. One concerns gnp numbers themselves. There are differences in the national accounting systems of countries and in the coverage and reliability of underlying statistical information between various countries. The other relates to the conversion of gnp data, expressed in different national currencies, to a common numéraire, conventionally the U.S. dollar, to compare them across countries. The World Bank's procedure for converting gnp to U.S. dollars is essentially based on the use of the official exchange rate. For some countries, however, the prevailing official exchange rate does not fully reflect the rate effectively applied to actual foreign exchange transactions.

Recognizing that these shortcomings affect the comparability of the gnp per capita estimates, the World Bank has introduced several improvements in the estimation procedures. Through its regular review of national accounts of its member countries, the World Bank systematically evaluates the gnp estimates, focusing on the coverage and concepts employed, and where appropriate makes adjustments to improve comparability. The World Bank also undertakes a systematic review of exchange rates to assess their appropriateness as conversion factors. An alternative conversion factor is used when the official exchange rate for a country is judged to diverge by an exceptionally large margin from the rate effectively applied to foreign transactions.

In an effort to achieve greater comparability, the U.N. International Comparison Project has developed measures of gdp using purchasing-power parities rather than exchange rates. So far the project covers only a limited set of countries, and some inherent methodological issues remain unresolved. Readers are referred to Irving Kravis, Alan Heston, and Robert Summers, World Product and Income: International Comparisons of Real Gross Product (Baltimore, Md.: Johns Hopkins University Press, 1982).

As noted in the introduction, the estimates of 1982 gnp and per capita gnp published in this Atlas are calculated on the basis of the 1980-82 base period. With this method, the first step is to calculate the conversion factor. This is done by taking the simple arithmetic average of the actual exchange rate for 1982 and of deflated exchange rates for 1980 and 1981. The actual exchange rate for 1980 is multiplied by the relative rate of inflation for the country and the United States between 1980 and 1982; the actual exchange rate for 1981 is multiplied by the relative rate of inflation for the country and for the United States between 1981 and 1982.

This average of the actual and the deflated exchange rates is intended to smooth the impact of fluctuations in prices and exchange rates. The second step is to convert the gnp at current market prices and in national currencies of the year 1982 by means of the conversion factor as derived above. Then the resulting gnp in 1982 U.S. dollars is divided by the midyear population to derive the 1982 per capita gnp in current U.S. dollars. The preliminary estimates of gnp per capita for 1983, shown together with the 1982 estimates, are calculated by the same method, but with 1981-83 as the base period.

The estimates of population are primarily from the U.N. Population Division. In some cases the population estimates were adjusted by the World Bank. Refugees not permanently settled in the country of asylum are generally considered to be part of the population of their country of origin.

Growth rates of population, gnp, and gnp per capita for 1973-82 are average annual growth rates that have been computed by fitting trend lines to the logarithmic values of population, gnp, and gnp per capita at constant market prices for each year of the time period.

The group averages for gnp per capita are derived by dividing the sum of gnp figures in current U.S. dollars by the sum of population. The group averages for the social indicators are the population-weighted arithmetic means of the respective indicator values for each country in the group. These averages could be considered as approximations of "normal" values for the respective country groups. Since the coverage of countries among the indicators depends on the availability of data and is not uniform, caution must be exercised in relating averages of one indicator to another.

The primary sources for data on life expectancy, infant mortality, and primary school enrollment are the publications of specialized international agencies, supplemented by data from World Bank data files. Despite the difficulties in achieving comparability in definitions and coverage, the indicators are useful for describing orders of magnitude, indicating trends, and characterizing major differences between countries. For the gross primary school enrollment ratios, the most recent estimates have been used if data were not available for 1982. (Throughout the Atlas, the data for China do not include Taiwan.)

Scholars and statisticians interested in a fuller and more technical explanation of the method used in compiling the gnp per capita figures for the Atlas are invited to address their queries to the Comparative Analysis and Data Division, Economic Analysis and Projections Department, The World Bank, 1818 H Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20433, U.S.A.

ABOUT THE WORLD BANK

The World Bank is a multilateral development institution whose purpose is to assist its developing member countries in furthering their economic and social progress so that their people may live better and fuller lives. The term "The World Bank" refers to two legally and financially distinct entities: the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development (IBRD) and the International Development Association (IDA). The IBRD and IDA have three related functions: to lend funds, to provide economic advice and technical assistance, and to serve as a catalyst in stimulating investment by others. Thus, the World Bank helps to support a wide variety of projects, large and small, public and private, chiefly in the following fields: agriculture and rural development, education, energy, industry, population planning, technical assistance, transport, telecommunications, urban development, and water supply.

The IBRD finances its lending operations primarily from borrowings in the world capital markets. IDA extends assistance to the poorest countries on easier terms, largely from resources provided by its wealthier members. Funds from such other sources as governments, commercial banks, export credit agencies, and other multilateral institutions are increasingly being paired with World Bank funds to cofinance projects.

As part of its work the Bank tries to help countries deal more effectively with the social aspects of economic development, such as rural poverty, income distribution, and rapid population growth.

The World Bank also provides loans to help developing countries adjust their economic policies and structures in the face of balance of payments problems that threaten continuing development. And a short-term special action program has the goals of developing exports, financing imports for critical productive activities, and rehabilitating and modernizing infrastructure.

The International Finance Corporation (IFC), an affiliate of the World Bank, works to further economic development by promoting growth in the private sector of developing countries. Using its own resources and working closely with private investors from around the world, it helps to mobilize foreign and domestic capital to invest in commercial enterprises.

As of 31 December 1984, 148 countries were members of the IBRD, 132 of IDA, and 126 of the IFC.
